INTRODUCTION

Since the foundation of the European Agency for Special Needs and Inclusive Education (the Agency) in 1996, there have been key conceptual changes in the thinking behind and policy priorities for developments on the journey towards inclusive education.

A first shift was from the concept of special educational needs (SEN) to special needs education (SNE). This represented a move away from focusing on the learner (special educational needs), towards a focus on the provision that learners who experience difficulties at school may need (special needs education). The term 'special needs education' widened the focus beyond learners with disabilities to include learners who appeared to be failing in school for a wide variety of reasons – for example, children living in poverty or those from different linguistic or cultural backgrounds. Special needs education, however, continued the deficit or medical model that still saw the problems as being within the learner.

There has never been an agreed definition of SEN or SNE that could be used across countries. The groups of learners considered to have special needs requiring additional provision largely differ across countries.

Inclusion requires a move away from a concern with the categories a learner may or may not fall into, to focus on the barriers some learners experience that lead to marginalisation and exclusion. This leads to an overall focus on learners vulnerable to exclusion by the education system. Agency work focuses on supporting the development of inclusive education systems in its member countries to ensure every learner's right to inclusive and equitable educational opportunities. This aim is directed at all learners, while recognising the need to specifically address specific learners vulnerable to exclusion.

Agency work acknowledges that every learner has their own unique experiences of discrimination and/or barriers to learning. All aspects of Agency work aim to consider everything and anything that can marginalise learners and increase their chances of exclusion (European Agency, 2021<sup>1</sup>). This requires a move away from a medical approach and labelling with separate provision for different groups, towards a rights-based approach that focuses on the barriers within the system (European Agency, 2022a).

Central to this commitment and understanding of inclusive education are the legal definitions or descriptions in policy that Agency member countries use to identify and potentially label learners to make additional provision and resources available for them based on their needs.

The Agency also acknowledges the growing need to take account of intersectionality – the interconnected nature of all social categorisations – when considering the needs of all learners. Intersectionality is the understanding that a person, group of people, organisation or social problem is affected and impacted upon by a number of pressures, forces, levers, discriminations and disadvantages. It considers everything and anything that can marginalise learners and increase their chances of exclusion. This includes, but is not limited to:

... gender, remoteness, wealth, disability, ethnicity, language, migration, displacement, incarceration, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, religion and other beliefs and attitudes (UNESCO, 2020, p. 4).

The Agency's current Multi-Annual Work Programme (2021–2027) highlights the concept of intersectionality.

The Legislative Definitions around Learners Vulnerable to Exclusion activity

Legislative Definitions around Learners Vulnerable to Exclusion aimed to collect information from Agency member countries focusing on legislative definitions around learners vulnerable to exclusion in education systems. It collected evidence to indicate where countries currently stand regarding the definition of and approach to learner groups and risk factors within inclusive education systems. There was a particular focus on legislative definitions and descriptions around a broad vision of inclusive education for all learners.

Specifically, the activity examined how Agency member countries legally define and describe learners' needs in terms of considering them as groups of learners with special needs or learners vulnerable to exclusion. It also considered how anti-discrimination legislation and legislation for inclusive education define and/or describe learners' needs, and explored the concept of intersectionality.

In the activity, the term 'learners' needs' is understood as a way to highlight a requirement for educational provision and/or support without applying a label based on an external factor that in some way describes or impacts upon an individual or group of learners. Using the non-categorical term 'learners' needs' would be an ideal approach for countries to take and is in line with the Agency position on inclusive education systems (European Agency, 2022b).

The reality – as evidenced by analysing countries' legislative definitions or descriptions in policy around learners' needs – clearly indicates that legislation and policy documents describe learners' needs with less of a focus on learner requirements for provision and support, and more on externally generated labels that identify groups of learner characteristics.

The activity uses the terms 'categories of groups of learners' and 'groups of learners'. They refer to the groups of learners identified through the analysis conducted in this activity. However, it must be made clear that references to categories of groups of learners do not in any way endorse or promote the labelling of learners. The term 'groups of learners' has been applied as a way of investigating where and how country legislation and policy make distinctions between different groups of learners who may be vulnerable to exclusion.

As with the journey towards inclusive education, legal definitions may be developing towards learners vulnerable to exclusion and the consideration of intersectionality. Therefore, to respect the context of all countries, information on special needs categories is considered, as well as definitions considering all learners.

Please refer to the Legislative Definitions around Learners' Needs – Policy Brief for more information about the activity.

How the country reports were prepared

Agency team members compiled evidence from 35 Agency member countries.

Agency team members collected the information in this country report from Agency reports, the country information pages and Eurydice sources. The extracts focus on identifying legal definitions around learners vulnerable to exclusion. They do not cover the different forms of provision for these learners. However, it is recognised that in some cases there may be operational definitions rather than legal definitions.

The extracts are considered evidence of a legal definition and are included if they explain how a term is understood within legislation and policy. In some cases, there may not be an extract that provides this information; however, the legal documents provide indirect evidence that a legal definition may exist. Where this indirect evidence was found, it has been included.

It is to be expected that there may not be information available in response to every question, as country contexts differ and each country is at a different stage on the journey to develop inclusive education. Therefore, a wide range of questions was selected to allow evidence to be collected from every Agency member country.

Each of the first three sections begins by clarifying key terminology.

This report includes three sections with information that the Agency team compiled:

1. Legal definitions of special needs
2. Legal definitions of learners vulnerable to exclusion
3. Legal definitions of inclusive education.

Section 4 contains additional questions that country representatives could choose to answer. Country representatives also had the option to review and amend sections 1–3.

The completed country reports served to identify trends within and across countries on legal definitions related to learners vulnerable to exclusion. The activity report, Legislative Definitions around Learners' Needs: A snapshot of European country approaches, explains how the country reports were used for the analysis and presents the findings.

LEGISLATIVE DEFINITIONS AROUND LEARNERS' NEEDS IN UNITED KINGDOM (WALES)

1. Legal definition of special needs

A learner with special needs is understood as a learner who:

... for a wide variety of reasons, require[s] additional support and adaptive pedagogical methods in order to participate and meet learning objectives in an education programme. Reasons may include (but are not limited to) disadvantages in physical, behavioural, intellectual, emotional and social capacities (UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2012, p. 83).

1.1 There is a legal definition of special needs

Evidence

Children have special educational needs if they have a learning difficulty which calls for special educational provision to be made for them. Children have a learning difficulty if they:

- a) have a significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of children of the same age; or
- b) have a disability which prevents or hinders them from making use of educational facilities of a kind generally provided for children of the same age in schools within the area of the local education authority
- c) are under compulsory school age and fall within the definition at (a) or (b) above or would so do if special educational provision was not made for them.

Section 312, Education Act 1996

1.2 The legal definition of special needs is found in laws and policies

Evidence

- The Special Educational Needs Code of Practice for Wales guidance document
- Additional Learning Needs and Education Tribunal \(Wales\) Act 2018
- Learning and Skills Act 2000

1.3 The legal definition of special needs is found in strategies and programmes

Evidence

- Additional Learning Needs and Education Tribunal \(Wales\) Act 2018
- Learning and Skills Act 2000

- Section 312, Education Act 1996

1.4a Does your country's legal definition of special needs specify particular groups of learners?

Yes.

1.4b Which specific learner groups does the legal definition of special needs address?

Specific learner groups	Evidence
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• a learning difficulty or disability (whether the learning difficulty or disability arises from a medical condition or otherwise) which calls for additional learning provision</li><li>• significantly greater difficulty in learning than the majority of others of the same age</li><li>• disability for the purposes of the Equality Act 2010 (c. 15) which prevents or hinders him or her from making use of facilities for education or training of a kind generally provided for others of the same age in mainstream maintained schools or mainstream institutions in the further education sector</li><li>• learning difficulty or disability if he or she is, or would be if no additional learning provision were made, likely to be within subsection (2) when of compulsory school age</li><li>• does not have a learning difficulty or disability solely because the language (or form of language) in which he or she is or will be taught is different from a language (or form of language) which is or has been used at home.</li></ul>	Additional Learning Needs and Education Tribunal (Wales) Act 2018

2. Learners legally considered vulnerable to exclusion from education

Within this document, the term learners vulnerable to exclusion encompasses all learners whose educational experience is 'impacted upon by a number of pressures, forces, levers, discriminations and disadvantages' (European Agency, 2021, p. 6). These learners may or may not fall into categories of special needs and a special type of provision may or may not be available to support them.

Although there may not be an official definition of learners vulnerable to exclusion, learner groups which are addressed in different legal documents as receiving support and not identified as learners with special needs are listed here.

3. Legal definition of inclusive education

The Agency views inclusive education as:

... a systemic approach to providing high quality education in mainstream schools that effectively meets the academic and social learning needs of all the learners from the school's local community (European Agency, 2015, p. 2).

In inclusive education:

Learners are placed at the centre of a system that needs to be able to recognise, accept and respond to learner diversity. Inclusive education aims to respond to the principles of efficiency, equality and equity, where diversity is perceived as an asset. Learners also need to be prepared to engage in society, to access meaningful citizenship and to acknowledge the values of human rights, freedom, tolerance and non-discrimination (Soriano, Watkins and Ebersold, 2017, p. 6).

3.1 There is a legal definition of inclusive education

Evidence

No information.

3.2 The legal definition of inclusive education is found in laws and policies

Evidence

3.4 Do legal documents related to inclusive education refer to all learners, specific learner groups, or both all learners and specific learner groups?

Legal documents refer to specific learner groups.
