Teacher Education for Inclusion
Country Study Visit
Porto, Portugal

DEVELOPING TEACHERS’ ATTITUDES FOR INCLUSIVE EDUCATION

Manuela Sanches Ferreira
UTC de Educação Especial
Escola Superior de Educação do Porto
What is Inclusion?

Consequence for teacher competencies from considering it:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>An ethical paradigm</th>
<th>Increased tolerance to diversity</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>An agenda based on rights and values;</td>
<td>The needs of individuals;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>On the intrinsic value of human life;</td>
<td>Predominantly centered on distributive justice;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Belonging and self-realization, as in Maslow perspective.</td>
<td>Basic needs satisfaction;</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Belief

"help to interpret and simplify classroom life, to identify relevant goals, and to orient teachers to particular problem situations. Because of the complex and multidimensional nature of classroom life, knowledge alone would be inadequate in making sense of classroom situations and prioritizing problems to be tackled and actions to be undertaken" (Calderhead, 1995).
What is inclusion?

“a philosophy of acceptance and about providing a framework within which all children (...) can be valued equally, treated with respect and provided with equal opportunities at school” (Thomas, 1997, p.103).
Education for inclusion requires supporting teachers to intercept, in daily educational situations, the content knowledge to teach and the knowledge of how to teach it, so that teaching is a way of building social viability for everyone.

- Scientific narrative.
- Reality window interpretation.
Profile of Competencies for Inclusive Education.

1. What kind of Teachers competencies we need to Teacher Education for Inclusion?

And

• How can the initial and continuing teacher education to contribute to the gestalt between values and knowledge?
Teacher Education

A gestalt between scientific knowledge and values. How to teach teachers in a such a way that in what to do they are guided by the inclusive values and in how to do, by the scientific and pedagogical knowledge.

1. It is urgent to transform the proposition ‘teaching is a complex act’ into the proposition ‘teaching is a simple act’.

• We must stop playing the game find the differences to find the matches

• The training must help teachers to understand themselves so that others can understand them and

• The stable references that can reduce the uncertainties are the values.

• Look beyond genetics.